

GOSSIP ABOUT THE CONGRESS

Forty-Four Aspirants For Seats In The Next Congress From Wisconsin.

REVIEW OF SITUATION BY DISTRICT

Only Contest For Democratic Nomination Is In The First Congressional District--Other Contests.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Aug. 8.—Some interesting contests have developed in Wisconsin for the eleventh congressional seats to which this state is entitled at Washington. According to preliminary nomination petitions on file in the office of Secretary of State Hooser, there are 44 men in the various parties aspiring to congressional honors. Nominations will be made by republicans, democrats, prohibitionists and social democrats. Down in the southern part of the state, in the first congressional district, there is a hot fight in progress for the republican nomination between Congressman H. A. Cooper of Racine and Thomas S. Nolan of Jonesville. In this same district there is the only contest of all the state for the democratic congressional nomination. J. J. Cunningham of Janesville, being opposed by Calvin Stewart of Kenosha. It is said that the bitterness of the fight in the republican ranks has led the democrats to believe that the ordinarily large republican majority of the district will be so reduced as to make a democrat's election likely.

In the second district the contest for the nomination is all in the republican party. John M. Nelson, a La Follette adherent and the original opponent of the late H. C. Adams, being chased closely by M. S. Dudgeon of Madison, who has gathered the organization and support of the dead congressman.

In the third district J. W. Babcock appears to be reasonably assured of re-nomination by the republicans, although Judge D. O. Mahoney of Vilas is being pushed by the La Follette and anti-Babcock forces.

The fourth and fifth districts are having many troubles in the fourth and fifth districts, almost entirely in Milwaukee. Sheriff W. J. Cary, Charles N. Perry and John M. O'Rourke, running against O'Brien's re-nomination by H. P. Cochems. Joseph G. Donnelly, the brilliant democrat orator, will be the democratic opponent of the winner of the Cochems-Stafford contest.

The only democrat, Congressman C. H. Weiss, of Sheboygan Falls, is unopposed for the democratic nomination in the sixth, the one Wisconsin congressional district in which the democrats have a normal majority. He seems to have an easy way ahead for re-election.

Esch District. The seventh district is so strongly republican that Congressman John J. Esch of La Crosse will doubtless be returned for another term, having no opposition in the republican party, although Charles F. Hille of Black River Falls is running unopposed for the democratic nomination.

Unopposed. Still easier is the situation that greets Congressman J. H. Davidson of Oshkosh, for neither has he any opposition for the republican nomination, but the democrats have failed to place any candidate in the field for the nomination on the ticket of the minority party.

Fight in Ninth. Gustav Kuestermann, a member of the state board of control, and one of the La Follette leaders of Green Bay, is opposing Congressman E. S. Minor of Sturgeon Bay for the republican nomination in the ninth district. That district is the seat of one of the most earnest contests in the state.

Madden vs. Morse. In the tenth district, J. H. Madden of Ashland and E. A. Morse of Antigo are fighting it out for the republican nomination to succeed Congressman Webster Brown, who has determined to retire to business life and has not sought re-nomination.

Jenkins Troubles. Another half-breed-stalwart fight is raging in the eleventh district, where Ole G. Kinney, a non-speaking and right-winging La Follette member of the legislative assembly, is running for the republican nomination against J. J. Jenkins of Chippewa Falls. Francis McGuire of Hudson, the sole aspirant for the democratic nomination, is said to have fair chances of going to congress as the result of the primary fight between Kinney and Jenkins.

The Social Democrats. Two social democratic candidates, E. T. Melms and A. J. Welch of Milwaukee, in the fourth and fifth districts, respectively, hold all the hopes of that new party for congressional representation. If this party gets as large a vote in the fourth district as its nominees received last fall for legislative candidates, Mr. Melms will be elected. From Milwaukee last fall the social democrats sent one state senator and four assemblymen to the legislature, representing much of the territory comprised in the fourth district. The mayoralty campaign last spring showed the social democratic organization still very strong.

HEAP BIG INDIAN ON A RAMPAGE AGAIN

Chief of the Winnebagoes Tries to Scalp Two Business Men With Tomahawk.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Black River Falls, Aug. 8.—Postmaster Len and O. T. Olson, merchant, were attacked by Chief David Goodwill of the Winnebago Indians with a tomahawk during their visit at the annual medicine dance. Other Indians prevented their being scalped. The sheriff has a warrant for the chief and trouble is expected.

COLDWATER PEOPLE ARE IN PROVIDENCE

Catholic Total Abstinence Societies Gather in Rhode Island City.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Providence, R. I., Aug. 8.—Delegates representing tens of thousands of members in all sections of the country were gathered in this city today at the opening of the annual national convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America. Included among those present are many prominent priests and prelates of the church. At 9 o'clock this morning the delegates marched in a body to the cathedral, where solemn pontifical mass was celebrated by Bishop Hardin. At the opening of the regular sessions of the convention the visitors were greeted by Governor Utter and Mayor Dyer. The convention will remain in session until Saturday. The reports of the several officers show the past year to have been one of gratifying growth in the membership of the organization.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—"Corporal" James Tanner, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, with his official party, consisting of the national officers resident in Washington, left today for Minneapolis to attend the national encampment of the G. A. R., which is to be held in that city next week. Temporary national headquarters will be established in Minneapolis Friday.

CAROLINA DRUGGISTS HOLDING A MEETING

Men Who Mix Pills For the South Carolinians Gathered at Greenville.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Greenville, S. C., Aug. 8.—There was a good attendance today at the opening of the thirteenth annual convention of the South Carolina Pharmaceutical association. Those present include nearly all the chief cities and towns of the state. Various matters of interest and importance to the trade will be discussed during the two days' business sessions, which will be interspersed with various features of entertainment arranged by the citizens of Greenville.

STILL HOPE AGAINST HOPE FOR DEPOSITS

Milwaukee Avenue Bank Depositors in Chicago Again Crowd the Streets.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Today a weebone crowd of depositors continued to surround the wrecked Milwaukee Avenue State bank. As on the previous days, the informants are mostly working people, who came early and seemed to remain indefinitely. The police were on hand to repress any tendency toward disorder.

Conclusive evidence has been unearthed by State Bank Examiner Jones that Paul O. Skenshmidt, the fugitive president, has been guilty of highly criminal acts in the conduct of the business of the institution of which he is head. This was officially announced by Jones today. At the same time the culpability for crimes which have brought the far-reaching disaster on the northwest side is narrowing more and more to President Skenshmidt. Henry W. Herling, the missing cashier, who was declared to be an embezzler of large sums of money, is being in a measure exonerated because of the lack of proof against him.

TRIED DISRUPTION OF THE ORDER

International Brotherhood of Teamsters Have Hot Times in Chicago Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Aug. 8.—The disruption of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters was attempted today by a faction of the delegates to the convention which has been in progress in Chicago for three days. In the attempt to depose Cornelius E. Shea, the national president, Albert Young, who aspires to succeed Shea, led the bolt movement and he and his followers, by refusing to attend the regular convention, held a rump session in another hall. It was a move decided upon to defeat Shea's election, which is set for tomorrow. Each faction is now making efforts to patch up the differences.

EXPLAINS DEATH OF THE JAPANESE FISHERMEN TO THE AMERICAN MINISTER

Does Not Apologize For The Accident As They Violated The Law Of Nations.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—Acting Secretary of State Bacon has sent to Ambassador Wright at Tokio the substance of a dispatch received from Solicitor Sims at Sitka, Alaska, regarding the killing of Japanese fishermen in St. Paul, Iceland. The secretary states the dispatch is forwarded for the purpose of giving information such as this government has of the regrettable incident. The news which may reach Japan may be

In a distorted form. There is no intention of offering an apology or any further regret other than is contained in this dispatch; as the department regards the Japanese fishermen as poachers if they were within the three-mile limit and the dispatch from Sims emphasizes this fact. The United States will take no further active interest in the killing of the Japanese poachers save that the twelve prisoners must be tried by the United States authorities and according to the United States law.

THE KING'S CUP IS BEING RACED FOR BY YACHTS

New York Yacht Club To Compete For The Gift Of England's Ruler At Newport.

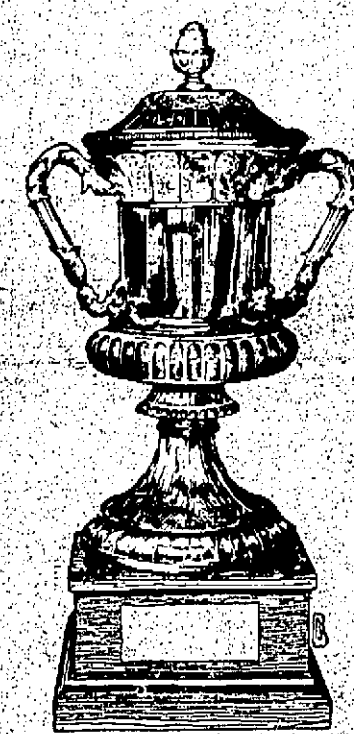

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Newport, R. I., Aug. 8.—This is the date set for the first contest for King Edward's gift to the New York Yacht club, designated by his Majesty as a perpetual trophy, to be sailed for annually by American yachts off New-

There is a choice of four courses, the selection depending upon the wind. The first course is 38 miles in length. The second course is a triangle of 37 1/2 miles, with the Vineyard South Lightship and Fen and Chicken Lightship as the rounding marks. The third course is 35 1/2 miles in length. The first leg to the east buoy off Block Island, the next east half south twelve miles, to a mark thence north by west, ten miles to the finish. The fourth course, of 35 1/2 miles, is south by west, half west, twelve miles, east by north, eleven and one-quarter miles, thence north west half north, twelve miles to the finish.

The entries for the race are as follows: Cornelius Vanderbilt's Rainbow, Harry L. Maxwell's Yankee, J. J. Rogers Maxwell's Queen, William Seaton's Taormina, A. E. Luke's Corona, H. F. Lippitt's Westmore, E. D. King's Neola, and Cleveland H. Dodge's Hester.

The trophy, offered by King Edward for the winner of the race is a magnificent specimen of the goldsmith's art. It is large and massive. It stands 31 inches from the base to the apex of the ornamented cover. The block of highly polished hardwood upon which it rests is eight inches high. The circumference of the base of the cup is 41 inches, and the circumference of the upper body around the handles is 47 inches. Its capacity is several gallons. On the front, which is highly polished, is the insignia of royalty, and under it, "I. R. VII." in monogram, and the following inscription: "This cup is presented to the New York Yacht club by his Majesty King Edward VII, honorary member of the club, 1906." On the face of the block on which the cup rests is a gold plate, upon which will be inscribed the name of each yacht and the names of their owners that succeed in winning the races.

port during the annual cruise of the New York Yacht club. Needless to say, the thousands of yachting enthusiasts gathered here are on the qui vive in anticipation of the event. The starting point for the race is off the Breton's Reef Lightship.

LADY CURZON LEFT A WILL AT DEATH

Will Gives Jewels in Trust for Expected 'Eldest Son.'

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, Aug. 8.—The will of Lady Curzon, of Kedleston, who died July 18, was filed for probate. It is dated Dec. 19, 1893, and was made on board the steamship Arabia. The value of the estate is placed at $39,375.

The testatrix gives numerous jewels to her husband in trust for their eldest son, to go to him as heirlooms with the title, but should she leave no son, they will then go to their daughters. The diamond jewels given to her by Lord Scarsdale, father of Lord Curzon of Kedleston, she leaves to her husband for life, and then to the owner of the Kedleston title. A painting by Millet and a number of books go to her father and her furs go to her mother. The residue is left to her husband.

Lady Curzon left three daughters, Mary Irene, born in 1890; Cynthia Blanche, born in 1895; and Alexandra Naldera, born in 1904.

NO DEATHS IN THE BIG TEXAS FLOOD

Two Districts Heard From Report That There Is No Loss of Life.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 8.—Reports were received today from Ballinger and Brownwood, in the flooded district, which say no loss of life has occurred.

Dr. C. C. Hendricks of Atlantic City, N. J., has entered suit against Mrs. Laura Biggar Bennett, claiming $299,980 for professional services. Dr. Hendricks alleges that he attended Mrs. Bennett in his private sanitarium in New Jersey for two years, and that he was only paid $20 during that time.

INDIANA HOLDING EXPERIENCE MEETING

Fourth Class Postmasters of Hoosier State Discuss Use of Postal Cards.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 8.—Today the Indiana branch of the National League of Postmasters of the fourth class is in session in this city. The meeting convened this morning with an attendance of more than a score of members to which further accessions were made on the arrival of the afternoon trains. The forenoon was spent in an informal reception and experience meeting. This afternoon the league took up the discussion of various matters in which the postmasters of the fourth class are particularly interested.

WHOLE COUNTY IS TO BACK DIETZ UP

Taxpayers' Association Resolves to Pay All Expenses of Trial.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 8.—At a meeting of the Sawyer County Taxpayers' association it was resolved to pay all the expenses of the trial of John Dietz, the defender of Cameron Dam, if he would peacefully surrender to the state authorities. It was also decided to ask the circuit court to quash all the indictments against Dietz and have him tried only upon the charge of holding the dam when the courts ordered it turned over to the Chippewa Lumber company. Dietz has received hundreds of letters from all parts of Wisconsin offering financial aid in his fight against the lumber company.

Secretary Bonaparte, visiting the navy pay officers' school, gave the young officers a plain talk about the pay corps, saying it had caused him far more trouble and had brought more discredit upon the department than any other branch of the service.

ARE READY TO
"SAVE" COUNTY

PARTY BATTLE LINES FOR PRI-

MARIES DRAWN UP.

W. H. H. MACLOON IN LISTS

Opposed by Capt. Pliny Norcross For Republican Nomination For Assemblyman.

At the primaries on Sept. 4 the voters of Rock county will be expected to make their choice of party nominees from a rather large list of candidates; so far as the republican ticket is concerned, an almost complete slate of democrats, and some scattering aspirants for places on the social democratic and prohibition tickets. Saturday night the last of the lists of signature were filed with County Clerk Howard W. Lee. Frank J. Hencke of the town of Turtle who wants to be the social democratic nominee for assemblyman from the third district and George H. Parker of Beloit who wishes to make the race for coroner under the same banner turned in their lists by failing to file declarations. Ira W. Jones of the town of Beloit who seeks the democratic nomination for sheriff submitted his papers on the 4th but failed to file his declaration until the 8th instance. The question as to whether or not he can go on the ticket has been submitted to Attorney General Sturdevant for settlement. Including the above mentioned parties whose rights to places on the tickets are questioned, the full list of aspirants for party nominations is as follows:

After Sheriff's Office.
Seeking nomination on the republican ticket: E. H. Ransom of the town of Bradford, Alvah Maxfield of the city of Janesville, George B. Merrill of the city of Beloit, Ira W. Fisher of the city of Evansville. Seeking the democratic nomination: Ira W. Jones of the town of Beloit.

For District Attorney.
John L. Fisher and E. H. Blanchard, both of Janesville, are to be balloted upon for the republican nomination for district attorney and Claude J. Hendricks, also of Janesville, for the democratic nomination.

Howard W. Lee of Treasurer will have no opposition for the republican nomination for county clerk; William J. Schumacher of Edgerton will undoubtedly receive the democratic nomination; Walter S. Kerry will be the social democratic nominee for the office. Oliver Smith of Beloit will have no contest for the republican nomination for county treasurer and William F. Christman of Clinton village will be the democratic nominee.

Clerk of Court.
Ward A. Stevens, the present incumbent of the office, Jesse Earle of Janesville, and Charles H. Kline of Beloit will be engaged in a three-cornered contest for the republican nomination for clerk of court and the winner will have as his opponent on the democratic ticket Edwin M. Cary of Beloit.

Register and Coroner.
Charles H. Weirick will have no opposition for the republican nomination for register of deeds. His democratic opponent will be Peter J. MacFarlane of Johnston. Republicans and democrats alike have failed to make any nominations for coroner and George H. Parker of Beloit, social democrat, will probably have the field to himself in the failure to file a declaration can be overlooked.

First District Assemblyman.
Allan S. Baker and E. E. Gettle of Evansville are in the race for the republican nomination for the assemblyman from the first district of Rock county; John Sherman of Fulton receives the democratic nomination; and Roy Thomas W. North of Milton will be the prohibition candidate.

Second District Assemblyman.
W. H. H. Macloon of Janesville is the eleventh hour candidate to enter the lists against Capt. Pliny Norcross of this city for the republican nomination for assemblyman from the second district. The democrats are without a candidate; Fred Burpee having refused to make the run. John R. Horn of Janesville will be the social democratic candidate.

Third District Assemblyman.
Simon Smith of Beloit will apparently have no opposition for the republican nomination for assemblyman from the third district. Matt F. Lathrop of the town of Turtle will be the democratic opponent and Frank J. Hencke of the town of Turtle will be the social democratic nominee, if not ruled out by reason of his neglect to file a declaration.

THE FALL HUNTING
WILL BE VERY GOOD

Weather Has Been Favorable to the Feeding

Grounds.

This fall gives promise of being the best in many years for the duck hunters, many of whom are already preparing for the shooting which opens September 1. Guns are being cleaned, boats painted and dogs trained for the pursuits of the elusive mallard and many other wary species of webbed footers which will visit the local marshes. The wild rice has grown well and there will be plenty of food for the northern ducks when they fly through this vicinity on their way south next month.

Hunters who have visited the local feeding grounds and their effect on hunting conditions and their effect on the shooting as well as this year. They base their judgment on the number of young ducks and geese to be seen in making a trip through the marshes. The teal duck is adjudged the best eating of all and by many hunters, the flavor of the rice hen is preferred to that of the mallard, so that if their predictions are true there will be no cause for complaint.

The game laws for this fall will be the same this year as last. Shooting before sunrise and after sunset is not permitted although this robs the hunter of his chances of shooting mallards as the only time they come into the marsh is at dusk after sunset and they leave again in the dawn before the sun rises.

The principal laws to be observed by the hunter are: have a hunting license with you; do not shoot before sunrise or after sunset; do not shoot in open water; do not shoot before the season opens; and do not use more than 45 decoys, each of which must be marked with your own initials. In bringing home game a hunter may have 50 birds in his possession but not all of one kind. The limit on ducks is thirty, but the law permits a hunter to have a mixed bag of fifty birds provided that he does not exceed the limit on any one species, that is he may have 20 ducks, 10 snipe, and 20 rice hens in his possession but he cannot have thirty-one ducks and nineteen rice hens with him without being liable to arrest.

WISCONSIN STATE FAIR.

Great Annual Event Will be Held at Milwaukee September 10 to 14.

The Wisconsin State Fair will be held at Milwaukee the second week in September, opening on Monday, Sept. 10th and closing Friday, Sept. 14th. All the preliminary arrangements for the great event have been completed by the Board of Managers. Special railroad rates of one fare for the round trip will prevail during the week and every provision has been made for the accommodation of the hundreds of thousands of Wisconsin people who will attend.

Never before in the history of Wisconsin has such an attractive program been offered at the State Fair. Twenty-five thousand dollars in premiums for live stock, agricultural, dairy and other state products has been offered. For the racing events the sum of $30,000 is offered. More than three hundred entries have been made in the various speed classes which are to include two racing events for which purses of $5,000 are offered, and three $2,500 events. Wisconsin will lead all other states in the character of its races, the best horses from all parts of the country having been entered for various events.

While every effort has been made to make the fair the most complete exposition of the agricultural achievements of the state, special provision has also been made for startling and spectacular entertainment features. Wisconsin people will be given their first opportunity to witness the marvellous maneuvers of an air ship. Early in the year the contract was made for ascensions by the Kaibash airship which is the only one in the country that has made successful trips in the air. Roy Knabenshue, the famous aerial operator, will make ascensions from the grounds, travel down to the heart of Milwaukee and back each afternoon. The weather conditions being favorable.

The Ladies' Relay Running Races, which were such a popular feature last year, will be repeated this year each evening. Four miles will be raced every half mile. The prizes will be awarded the closing day of the fair for the best time made for the twenty miles.

Elaborate preparations have been made for the evening entertainment. The Fair's Fire Works company has been engaged to provide spectacular fireworks for four evenings of the week. Vaudeville acts will be given before the grandstand each afternoon and evening which may be witnessed free of charge.

Many improvements have been made on the grounds, including several miles of new cement sidewalk and the erection and repairing of several buildings. The splendid capacity judging pavilion, having a capacity of four thousand people, will be used for indoor judging events and free exhibitions of horsemanship and military maneuvers.

HEARTH AND HOME
AT MYERS GRAND

Rural Play With City Setting and

Intelligent Dogs Opens

Season.

The Myers Opera-House opened its doors last evening for its first performance of the season of 1907 with "Hearth and Home." A fair-sized crowd witnessed the play in spite of the band concert and other amusements about the city. The foundation of the play is situation in the country, from where it shifts to the city with its troubles and cares. The important character portrayals are divided among the congregation headed by a young broad-minded preacher whose aim is to subdue the wild life of one of his flock to become rampant. Another character was an aspirant to reach the highest pinnacle of fame as a detective, and his trials furnished much amusement as he tried his simple-minded sweetheart. During the action of the piece, intelligent dogs are introduced who perform stunts that bring forth much applause.

Arc Light Donated by Electric Co.

Was Much Appreciated by Musicians and the Large Audience.

Court House park was visited by a throng of pleasure-seekers last evening, the attraction being the opening concert given by the Imperial band. A large arc light which had been hung over the platform by Capt. Korst of the Janesville Electric Co. on his own initiative and without cost to the city was much appreciated by the musicians and their audience as well. There were eight numbers in the well-selected program and the rendition of them was uniformly pleasing.

M. G. Jeffris of This City May Be Asked to Deliver an Address.

Congressman Charles E. Fuller of Belvidere, E. D. Reynolds of Rockford, and M. G. Jeffris of Janesville are under consideration as available speakers at the Old Settlers' reunion to be held at Ho-No-Gah park on August 30. Saturday afternoon the chairman and members of the various committees in charge of the arrangements met and discussed various plans. The committee appointed to select a speaker reported the three names under consideration. The chair added a new member to each of the committees, selecting individuals from localities which had not been represented theretofore.

WEATHER REPORT IS VERY FAVORABLE

State Weather Man Tells of the Weather of the Past

Week.

The past week was generally warm and dry with a fairly large amount of sunshine. There were very beneficial showers throughout the state, especially in the middle and southern sections, during the latter part of the week and while they were sufficient for soil needs at most places there are a few localities where more rain is badly needed. The week opened with generally clear and pleasant weather, and continued so during the first two days, the temperature being moderate. Showers occurred in the western part of the state Wednesday morning but elsewhere the weather continued fair although somewhat threatened at times during the day. By Thursday morning the temperature had risen quite decidedly and the weather was warm and unsettled during the day with thunderstorms in the western half of the state during the afternoon and in the eastern half during Thursday night and early Friday morning. The weather was fairly settled and the temperature fell somewhat during Friday and Friday night except in the southern section, where the temperature continued high during Saturday. Moderately severe thunderstorms occurred in nearly all parts of the state either Saturday afternoon or night, but the rain fall was generally light. The week closed with partly cloudy to cloudy weather and about normal temperatures.

The mean temperature for the week averaged from one to five degrees above the normal, the departure being greatest in the southeast section and least in the northern section. The maximum temperature for the week occurred at most stations either on the 2d or the 4th and ranged from 82 to 91 degrees.

The precipitation was rather unevenly distributed over the state. The total for the week averaged heaviest in the middle and lightest in the northern section.

THE OLD SOLDIERS
GO TO MINNEAPOLIS

Next Big Encampment Is to Be Held

in Minnesota

City.

The G. A. R. encampment which will open at Minneapolis next week promises to attract the largest delegation from this city that ever attended a similar affair. Both local railroads are preparing to accommodate a large crowd. The low rate for the round trip enables many to make the trip and hundreds besides the veterans of the Grand Army are expected to spend encampment week in the Minnesota metropolis. Arrangements are being made by the North-Western railroad for a special train which starts at Beloit and leaves here at 6 o'clock Monday morning. It gets into Minneapolis at 2 o'clock. It is understood that the veterans will go on this road, but the other road is making a strong bid for their share of the patronage and expects to carry a large crowd.

Gazette Printing Department Turns

Out a Handsome

Job.

A fifty-thousand-run of brochures for the Lewis Knitting Co. has recently come from the printing department of the Gazette, a very handsome lot of work. The inside is done on India tint enamel book paper with two colors of ink, the body being in "du-tone" or double tone ink. The cover is also in colors and the entire booklet finely illustrated with halftones from life subjects. The Lewis Knitting Co.'s distribution of advertising matter is widespread and Janesville secures much publicity through it.

Young Girl, Who Stole Books from

Library Writes a Letter

Back.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Aug. 8.—Miss Jennie H. Morrill has written a pathetic and penitent letter to Dr. R. G. Thwaites, superintendent of the state historical library in which she sadly confesses that she retained books that belonged to the library and entrusted them to be packed away in her boxes in a storage warehouse here. She says that she has been the victim of long continued and terrible headaches for many years and that during such periods she has been addicted to the use of certain drugs, which have induced an abnormal mental condition. She wrote a letter to an employee of the state library, informing her that in a time of sickness and irresponsibility, this taking of books from the library had been practiced and telling the friend to go to the storage warehouse, secure the books and return them to the library. Miss Morrill hoped in this way to return the property without the knowledge of Supt. Thwaites. The employee, however, is now traveling on a vacation and consequently the books were not returned before they were discovered by Superintendent Thwaites with a search warrant.

are wearing white derbies as decreed by the fashion set by England's ruler at Ascot recently. It's English, don't you know.

THE PARITY OF MONEY

There is one thing that Secretary Shaw has done which has not only escaped criticism but, to a large extent, has escaped even notice. He has directed the assistant treasurers of the United States to redeem silver in gold.

It is a fact not generally understood that the gold standard law of March 14, 1900, did not expressly provide for the redemption of silver currency in gold at the option of the holder. In other words, that law, while it provided for the gold standard, declaring that all forms of money issued by the United States should be maintained on this standard, and established a great gold fund for the redemption of the greenbacks, left it to the secretary of the treasury to maintain the parity of all forms of money. There are in circulation $660,000,000 of silver coin and silver certificates. Examine the silver certificates that may be in your pocket, and it will be discovered that it simply provides that the United States will pay to the bearer on demand the number of silver dollars named upon its face. If, however, this silver certificate be taken to the treasury and gold be demanded in exchange, the treasury will, without hesitation, give gold for it, and this alike for small amounts or for large.

There is, of course, only one way to maintain the parity of money and that is to give the holder his choice. If he has one kind of money and wants another, the only way to maintain parity is to let him have the kind he wants. Otherwise, he will sell the kind he wants, whereas so long as he can have his choice he is satisfied with either. Under our present law giving silver certificates right of way for small denominations there is no possibility of a raid upon the treasury, that would deplete the treasury of its gold in exchange for silver money. The government is therefore abundantly able to maintain the parity of all its money. So long as that remains the treasury policy there is no possible danger. But if there should be a president elected, who is weak or wrong on the money question, and if he should put at the head of the treasury department a secretary weak-kneed and disposed to vacillate on this question, it is easy to see that the country might be thrown into a panic. It is of the highest importance that a sound treasury policy has been established as a precedent, but so vital a matter as this ought to be expressed in law, and not left to the discretion of the secretary and the hazards of politics.

Belot News: If Robert M. La Follette is doing wrong in urging the nomination of Mr. Lenroot, then everything he has done falls to the ground and has been valueless.

Did It All With Handicap.

Exchange: Rockefeller plaintively says he wants people to understand him. However, one thing they may never understand is how a man with a retiring class got away with so much.

A Man, After All, Maybe.

La Crosse Leader-Press: Harry Shaw is entitled to some credit for deciding not to pretend to be insane and for dismissing the distinguished attorneys who tried to force that defense upon him.

Euphonious, But Meaningless.

El Paso Herald: "Boll weevil democrats" as applied to the Hearst followers sounds weird and interesting, but the inventor of the term is respectfully requested to rise and explain what it means.

Lie Passed in Reformers' Camp.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Even the most rabid stalwart never said meaner things about the half-breeds than the latter are saying about each other just at the present time. And the campaign has only commenced, too.

Seeking Fresh Irritation.

Exchange: In spite of the fact that there seem so many openings for a true and earnest patriot back home in Russia, Maxim Gorky persists in wandering around this country in search of fresh irritation.

Needs Little Encouragement.

El Paso Herald: Fairbanks is saying nothing about that presidential nomination and doing no campaigning, but any community that wants to see him and get his opinions has only to drop a postal card directed to have it honored by the next train.

Is There Something in This?

Exchange: And so John Dietz may really run for sheriff of Sawyer county. Well, this will at least give the people of that county a chance to show whether they honestly believe he is right or wrong in his contention with the lumber company.

Same Here, Also.

Oshkosh Northwestern: The Green Bay Gazette says that these "coming-home" gatherings are all right, but declares that city has never had to offer special inducements to get the wanderers from that place to come back every time they get a chance to do so.

Or Does He Falter?

Green Bay Gazette: Senator La Follette has to date spoken but once and has taken but little part in the campaign for his favorite. Possibly it is because, like a wise general, he is saving his ammunition until the enemy is at close range.

Zion's $1 Officials.

Exchange: Zion City is trying the experiment of wiggling along with municipal officials at a salary of $1 per year apiece. And along about this time next August she will be yelling about graft and innocently wondering why her functionaries can't be content with their salaries.

Breweries Built on the Hills.

Milwaukee Sentinel: What a difference there is between some cities. In Philadelphia the park commissioners are building a hill to hide from view a brewery. Out here we build breweries on the hills so that all the Philadelphia visitors can see them as soon as they strike town.

Many Who Praise Will Condemn.

Waupaca Post: Some of the most earnest advocates of the primary law are commencing to realize that it is pretty expensive for the candidates, and uncertain as to outcome. There will be a lot of disgusted and crest-fallen aspirants for political preferment on September 5.

Good Government Begins at Home.

Milwaukee News: Good government is not necessarily the fruit of political agitation or reform movements, or the triumph of this party or that party. It is to issue more from the home than from the primary from the school room rather than from capitol and legislative halls.

"Poor Cuss" Gets "Double Cross."

Fond du Lac Bulletin: What a man can't understand is why his wife bundles him up with several yards of muller, puts his feet in overshoes resembling row boats, and a fur cap on his head, and then walks out in thin peek-a-boo wraps herself. Yet the poor cuss is the one to catch cold every time.

Sorrows of the Great.

Madison Democrat: Great men, alas, too frequently beget offspring sadly unworthy the honored names of their sires. The suicide of young Case, the disolute son of Lyman Case, is a recent illustration, and a sympathetic people most earnestly grieve for the sorrows and shame of a father to whom comes, in his declining years, this cruel blow.

Voice of People Miscalculated.

Milwaukee Journal: The Chicago Tribune thinks the primary an improvement, but it shows up one of the weaknesses of the system and admits another very important one. With four democratic candidates for county judge in Cook county, the highest got 31 per cent, the second 30 per cent and the third 23 per cent of the vote and the nominee has less than one-third of the total vote cast. This is absurd as the voice of the people. The other still more important objection it puts in a sentence admitting that the law is of advantage to party men, but affords no show to independent voters unless they constitute themselves a party. In this state the Australian ballot law makes that difficult.

The Harvard Crew in England.

New York Tribune: The Harvard University oarsmen who are to race with the Cambridge crew in a few weeks are quoted on their arrival in England as saying that they expect to give a good account of themselves. That natural expression may be interpreted as meaning that they are confident of winning; but we do not believe that they really feel at all sure of the result of the race. The statement attributed to them probably reflects their exact condition of mind, and we have no doubt that their cheerful anticipations will be realized. They will give a good account of themselves. They have reason to know that they are powerful, expert and enduring crew. But it is certain that the Cambridge eight also possesses those qualities, and that it enjoys the great advantage of being at home, instead of abroad. Undoubtedly the Harvard men hoped to win when they started and would not have arranged the race if they had not thought they had a reasonable chance, but there was no vanity of spirit in their challenge, and not a hint of boastfulness appeared in the negotiations. In brief, the transaction has thus far exhibited the true temper of the amateur on both sides, and it will be completed in a manner creditable to the English and American universities. It will be a gentleman's race, differing in that respect from some international contests of recent years which have caused less pride than regret.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS.

Senator Dick is of the opinion that the federal investigations of the Standard Oil company will have no bad effect on the republican situation in Ohio this fall.

Governor Davidson of Wisconsin has called a special election to be held in the Second Congressional district September 4 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Representative Henry C. Adams.

The democrats of New York have decided to hold their state convention in Buffalo on September 25. The Hearst convention will be held in New York city Sept. 11.

The interesting question of whether

Georgia will have a United States senator from March 3, 1907, when the term of Senator Bacon expires, until the legislature convenes in the following June, has been decided by the attorney-general of the state, who holds that under the United States constitution the governor has a right to appoint or reappoint a senator in case of vacancy.

Speaker Cannon has served sixteen terms in congress and he will be nominated for a seventeenth when the Eighteenth district convention of Illinois meets next week. It is likely that the convention will mark the formal launching of the movement that aims to land "Uncle Joe" in the White House.

TOBACCO FROM ISLE

[OF PINES IS CUBAN]

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., August 8.—In the following letter to the collector of customs at Chicago, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Reynolds has ruled that the Isle of Pines is a part of Cuba and that tobacco coming therefrom is not entitled to free entry as proceeding from American territory, but is dutiable as foreign goods, although subject to the 20 per cent reduction under the Cuban reciprocity treaty.

Referring to your letter relative to the collection of duty upon two bales of tobacco imported from the Isle of Pines, I have to inform you that said island is not considered by this government as American territory, but is regarded as within the territorial jurisdiction of Cuba, and duties upon merchandise imported therefrom should be collected at the same rate as upon similar merchandise imported from Cuba.

The importers in this case declared that until the treaty now pending in the senate concerning the island of Pines to Cuba is ratified, all merchandise produced therein is entitled to free entry into the United States. The question is not yet fully settled, as the U. S. supreme court has pending before it a case on appeal, similar to the protest of the Chicago case, settled by Secretary Reynolds, a decision on which, it is expected, will be handed down by the court at its fall term beginning in October.

FROM CUBA DESPITE

IMPORTATION ROUTE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., August 8.—The Board of General Appraisers in a recent decision has held that leaf tobacco imported from Havana, to Bremen, transhipped to Canada and thence imported into the United States is subject to the reduced rates of duty provided by the reciprocity treaty. The case decided by the board was one where the tobacco was received at Bremen, warehoused and without any change in its condition having been made, was sent to Canada and then imported to this country at Buffalo. When the tobacco arrived at Buffalo the collector taxed it the full Dingley rates, on the ground that it was not imported directly from Cuba. A protest was filed against his decision and during the consideration of the case the board found that the tobacco was beyond any doubt of Cuban origin and had not been advanced in value one iota through handling, etc. For this reason the board ruled that the tobacco could be admitted under the terms of the Cuban reciprocity treaty, although indirectly imported, and the decision of the collector in assessing the full Dingley rates was revoked.

TOBACCO STUDY IN

PORTO RICO STOPPED

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—The report of the Agricultural Experiment Station of Porto Rico on its operations in 1905 states that the expert in charge of the tobacco experiments assigned to enter the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture, at Washington, and since that time, no work has been carried on with the cigar tobacco growing in the interior. It is very necessary that further studies be made with this important crop, should our means allow, says the report. "The tobacco soils of the island should be mapped out and further studies made of their fertilization. Researches with the curing and fermenting of cigar tobaccos are very much needed."

Some of the larger companies located in the interior valleys are producing a very fine quality of tobacco, both filler and wrapper. The soils of the station and their proximity to the sea forbid the production of the finer qualities of cigar tobaccos. Experiments are being carried out, however, in the production of other kinds used in manufacturing. It has been found that the White Burley, such as is grown in Kentucky, does very well on the soils of the station, producing a very large fine plant. Further experiments are being carried out with this variety.

NEW LEAF FACTORY

IN RICHMOND, KY.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., August 8.—Your correspondent is in receipt of advices from Richmond, Va., stating that the largest cigar manufacturing plant will be built and in operation in Richmond within a year. It is proposed by the American Cigar company to enlarge its present building, now a block in length by half a block wide, to double its present size. The plans for the big plant are said to have been completed and work begun shortly. The new factory will be devoted entirely to the manufacture of cigars and cheroots. No cigarettes will be turned out, and smoking tobacco will not be handled. It is further stated that the 5,000 working force will roll cigars and cheroots and the output, daily will enormously exceed the productive capacity of the biggest of the large cigar factories in the North, Middle West, or the Southern country.

MODERN CRUSADERS

Strange Tale That Comes from Brussels of Whim of Wealthy Widow.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Brussels, Aug. 8.—An enormous sensation has been created in the province of Luxembourg by an announcement appearing in a daily paper of Arlon, to the following effect: A well-known wealthy Belgian count, who died some time ago, left a widow and two sons. One of the latter soon followed his father to the grave, and in her grief the widowed countess, a devout lady, expressed the intention of sending her youngest son on a pious pilgrimage to the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem, there to pray for the repose of the souls of her beloved husband and son. Each pilgrim was to receive a complete outfit, $300 for travelling expenses, it being expressly stipulated that the whole of the journey should be made on foot, and in addition the sum of $5,000 on his return. Six eligible young men had already been accepted, and a deputy of the district had been requested by the countess to select the other five. On the day the announcement appeared several scores of able-bodied candidates made clamorous application to be chosen for the delightful free trip to the Holy Land, but great was their disappointment when they learned that the whole story was a pure canard. As a matter of fact, the newspaper in question had been made the victim of an ingenious hoax.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS IN

AN ANNUAL SESSION

Fourteen Million Members Are Represented by the Delegates at Winona Lake.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 8.—Sixty-nine states, provinces and territories of the United States, Canada, Mexico, Central America and Cuba are represented at the annual meeting begun here today by the executive committee of the International Sunday School association. Four days will be spent in the consideration of problems and principles of great import to the Sunday school world. The meeting is attended by about one hundred men, and the constituency for which they will legislate includes 155,000 Sunday schools, 1,500,000 officers and teachers, and more than 14,000,000 scholars in thirty religious denominations.

Among the problems pressing for solution is that of adult Bible classes. These are increasing rapidly in numbers all over the country and there are several movements looking toward national organization of them. The question of a petition to congress for an act of incorporation of the international association will be considered, and a report will be made by Judge John S. Sikes of Kentucky, chairman of the committee.

Primary department matters will receive thorough consideration, and the department will be placed on a basis of definite work than ever before. Chairman W. N. Harshorn of Boston will give his annual survey of the Sunday school field and will present some interesting facts relative to the importance and development of the continent-wide work.

Two other important matters to receive attention will have reference to the World's fifth convention to be held in Rome next year, and the twelfth international convention, scheduled for Louisville in 1908.

INTERNAL REVENUE

COLLECTIONS LARGE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—A preliminary report issued by the commissioner of internal revenue of the treasury department, shows the collections of internal revenue during the fiscal year 1906 aggregated $249,102,738, being an increase of $14,914,761.63 over the receipt of the fiscal year of 1905. The receipts of internal revenue from various sources amounted to the following:

Spirits, $143,294,055.12; tobacco, $45,422,997.35; fermented liquors, $55,041,355.56; oleomargarine, $570,037.93; allied chemicals, $1,410; mixed flour, $2,567.23; adulterated butter, $9,238.43; process or renovated butter, $138,073.09; banks, bankers, etc., $50.10; playing cards, $489,347.26; penalties, $233,991.63; and collections not otherwise herein provided for, $150,494.88, the latter amount including $142,145.22 from legacies on which the tax had accrued prior to the repeal of the act.

Collector Henry Fluk of the First Wisconsin district reported to the commissioner a total of $7,023,641.15 collections from internal revenue during the year ending June 30, 1906, and Collector James G. Monahan of the Second Wisconsin district reported a total of $923,709.47 collections. The statement further shows that a total of $7,947,350.62 was collected in Wisconsin through internal revenue taxes during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1906.

TINPLATE PEOPLE TO DISCUSS THE METALS

Three Hundred Delegates Attend Second Annual Convention of Master Metal Workers.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 8.—More than 300 delegates were present today at the opening of the second annual convention of the National Association of Master Sheet Metal Workers. The association, which does not concern itself with wages or similar matters but rather with the technical side of the industry, will be in session three days.

One of the principal matters to come up during the convention is the improvement of tinplate. It is said by members of the organization that the tinplate is not of the quality that it should be, and not of the quality it was in the past. A committee from the association conferred with a committee of the manufacturers several months ago, and the report of this joint committee will be presented to the convention.

The matter of apprentices also will be taken up and discussed. It is said that under the present system the apprentices are not taught by the journeymen in as thorough a manner as is desirable. It is possible, that this plan will take the form of a trade school. Various other matters of interest to the association will be discussed.

The officers in charge of the convention are: President, Edwin L. Seabrook, Camden, N. J.; secretary, W. H. Barnard, Norfolk, Va.; treasurer, E. W. Richards, Philadelphia; first vice-president, Paul L. Biersach, Milwaukee.

MAKING CHANGES IN BIG FACTORY

ROCK COUNTY SUGAR COMPANY PREPARING FOR CROP.

INSTALLING NEW MACHINERY

In Anticipation of Fifty Thousand Tons of Sugar Beets This Fall.

Sixty men are working down at the Rock County Sugar Company, installing new machinery, cleaning up the factory and making ready for the fifty odd thousand tons of beets that are expected to begin pouring in by the last of September to be made into ten million pounds of sugar this fall and winter. Manager Osburn said this afternoon that the entire factory is being overhauled in anticipation of the present crop and many improvements and changes in machinery are being made.

New Machinery.
A new combination tank is being installed and a new rock and weed is being placed in readiness for the coming crop. Two new sulphur forncies, one on the second and one on the fifth floor, are put in place and a new vacuum pump, an extra one, is installed. Also a large and improved mixer is being placed and repairs have been made in the boiler rooms, flues cleaned and other changes made.

Ten Million Pounds.
It is expected that this year's run of beets will be nearly as large as last season's or over fifty thousand tons. This means in the neighborhood of ten million pounds of sugar. The estimate is two hundred pounds to a ton of beets. It is thought that the factory may be running by the last week in September, but this all depends upon the sugar-beet crop.

SEVENTY LADIES AT FIVE O'CLOCK TEA

Mrs. L. B. Reynolds and Mrs. A. O. Wilson Entertained Yesterday Afternoon.

As guests of Mrs. L. B. Reynolds and Mrs. A. O. Wilson over seventy ladies enjoyed a five o'clock tea given at the Reynolds residence on South Jackson street yesterday afternoon. The home was attractively decorated with golden glow and other flowers and the tea was served in two courses at small tables by eight young Misses and matrons. Thereafter several hours were devoted to six-handed euchre, and Mrs. J. P. Thorne won the prize. Mrs. Reynolds and Mrs. Wilson will entertain another large company on Friday.

Threshing Begins

About tomorrow afternoon or Friday the threshing about Rock County will be well under way. The farmers about this locality are favored this season with fine crops. The corn, oats and barley fields will yield rich returns and the potatoes, cabbage and other vegetables are in excellent condition. It is some years since the crops of Janesville have been so satisfactory as they are expected to be this year and the farmers in general are happy over the prospects of rich returns for their year's work. In many places the farmers are all through with their harvesting, and are waiting their turn for the threshers, while in other sections the wheat and barley crops remain to be cut.

BURIAL SERVICE WAS CONDUCTED IN DARK

Washouts Near Beloit Delayed Funeral of the Late State Veterinarian E. D. Roberts.

Not until after eight o'clock last evening in darkness made almost impenetrable by a cloudy sky, did the body of the late Dr. Evan D. Roberts reach its final resting place in the Mount cemetery near Racine. The last services were read in the light of a lantern held by Governor James Davidson.

A washout near Beloit delayed the funeral train from Janesville two hours and it was five o'clock in the afternoon when Frankville was reached. After a driver of a half-mile the homestead was reached and over a hundred teams whose drivers had been waiting since noon were hitched on the premises. Some fifty members of the Racine K. of P. lodge had been there since four o'clock. The gathering was so large that the people could not be accommodated in the home and the services were held from the front veranda with the lawn as an improvised amphitheatre. Three ministers took part and it was exactly 8:30 when the funeral cortege started for the cemetery ten miles away. Heavy rains had fallen during the day and the roads were almost impassable in places.

The remains were placed in a vault after the brief service at the grave had been completed. The Janesville Knights of Pythias and friends numbering about fifty who accompanied the remains to the home succeeded in getting a train to Milwaukee last night and reached home this morning.

MAKING OFFERS FOR THIS YEAR'S HARVEST

Edgerton Reporter Says the Outlook For High Prices of Weed is Good.

Buyers are out in nearly every growing section of the state making offers on crops that look good to them, but the amount placed under contract is considerably less than the previous week, showing that growers prefer to wait until they know more definitely what they have to harvest. The market is still further blocked by the publication of extravagant prices paid, and promises of still further advance, which is largely fiction, says the Edgerton Reporter.

Not Doing Well.

It is no longer a secret that the growing tobacco is not doing as well as was hoped for under the present weather conditions and it seems certain now that the crop will yield various qualities of leaf. There is a much larger proportion of small, uneven and late tobacco, some of which is spindling and showing an unhealthy growth, but whether due to the drought, wire worms, or other causes, the fact remains in view of these conditions, the operators still hold to their determination to hold out of the market until the outcome of the crop is more definite. Topping is going forward in the early field which under the influences of generous rains are making fair progress. The later tobacco is catching up, too, but the improvement is not so marked.

The Shipments Out of Storage

Scarcely reach 4000s from this market to all points for the week.

A Report.

As secretary of the Wisconsin Tobacco Growers' & Dealers' association, I submit the following summarized report taken from the several township secretaries' crop bulletins. The average in the state has been in increased yield in season, about 70 per cent. It is safe to say that the growing in the different tobacco sections close around 40,000 acres. In Crawford, Vernon, Dunn and Richland counties the crop has been retarded and damaged materially by the ravages of cut and wire worms. In many townships growers have been compelled to set two and three times, necessitating a scarcity in plants, and as a direct consequence the crop has started very uneven. At least one-half of the crop in the above counties will be two or three weeks later than usual in maturing. East of the Wisconsin river growers have been favored with an abundance of plants and favorable weather.

Stand is Good.

Generally speaking the stand is good. The crop has been retarded in growth for three weeks, owing to the drought. Many fields, however, are equal to last season's growth, and the general outlook for Wisconsin is encouraging. The largest increase in acreage is to be found in Dane county. The majority of township secretaries in this county report the crop in a healthy condition. In Rock county there has been no increase in acreage; growers have been blessed with an abundance of plants, and with favorable growing conditions the yield will equal last season's crop. In Jefferson county there has been no increase in acreage. The crop is backward and will be at least three weeks later than last season in developing. In Walworth county growers have planted the usual acreage, and in the majority of instances the outlook is encouraging. The general condition of the growing crop in the state is scarcely normal.

Northern Section.

The northern sections are very uneven in growth and many fields are poorly cultivated and uninviting. In Dane and Rock counties farmers have their crops well in hand, and with favorable conditions the yield will be equal to last season's growth. From a careful perusal of the crop reports received it is fair to predict one-fourth of the entire crop has been retarded. In northern sections prevailing prices have ranged from 12c to 15c; southern sections prevailing prices range from 8c to 12c. The majority of farmers will not contract until the crop is ready to harvest. Our next crop bulletin will be issued October 1st, at which time we hope to submit an accurate report of the 1906 crop of tobacco.

DEATH CALLS YOUNG MAN TO HIS REWARD

Frank O. Ehrlinger, Aged Nineteen, Died Suddenly Today at Home of Relatives.

This morning at 8:30 at the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Brown, in Hanover, occurred the untimely death of Frank O. Ehrlinger of this city. He was the youngest son of Mr. A. J. Ehrlinger of 108 Cornelia street and death occurred at the youthful age of nineteen years. He was a graduate of the Janesville High School in the Class of 1904 and had been in the employ of the Lewis Knitting company for some time. Besides the many schoolmates and friends he leaves to mourn his death three brothers—Lewis G., Edmund P. and Armond, all of this city—and two sisters—Isabelle M. Ehrlinger of this city and Mrs. J. F. Kennedy of Johns town.

Eddie Knight.
The funeral of little Eddie Knight, who was drowned in the river yesterday, will be held at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Knight, 157 Madison street, tomorrow morning at 10:30. Rev. J. W. Laughlin will officiate and the interment will be in Oak Hill cemetery.

RID THE RIVER OF THE STUMPS

Launch Owners Plan Crusade to Clean River of Obstructions.

Because the men who are repairing the upper dam have let through a great quantity of water so as to be able to work to a greater advantage, the launch club of this city are going to blow out the stumps and other obstructions to navigation while the water is low. This work would have been done this week, but the heavy rains have raised the water above the stumps again and the work will be delayed until the first of next week. This will be a great improvement to navigation in our beautiful river, and those who have been afraid to indulge in the pleasure before, will now be safe in taking the ride clear to Indian Ford. The lights which have recently been ordered to each launch by the club is a great help to safety as well as attractive at night time.

NEWS OF THE STATE IN BRIEF

A proposition to bond Superior for $2,500 to extend the water works was carried by a vote of 99 to 31.

James Oclair, a laborer of Marinette, suffered a fractured skull by being struck by a trolley car and thrown twenty feet while he was working on a pavement in Menominee. He is expected to die.

Despite a petition with over 400 signatures, the addresses of two clergymen who have their churches within a stone's throw of the site, the common council has refused to deny Charles McDowell a saloon license.

UMPIRE BARRED AT POLO GROUNDS

GAME FORFEITED TO CHICAGO
BY USUAL SCORE.

PULLIAM BACKS HIS MAN

Action of Regular Official Sustained by League President, Who Condemns McGraw for His Part in Affair.

New York, Aug. 8.—Something unique in baseball occurred here Tuesday, when the game, which was to have been played as the third of the present series between the New York and Chicago National League clubs did not take place on the Polo grounds. When Johnstone and Emslie, the umpires assigned by President Pulliam, arrived at the entrance to the polo grounds Tuesday, Johnstone was refused admittance and Emslie, who accompanied him, declined to take any part in the game so long as his associate was not allowed to perform his official function. Johnstone then declared the game forfeited by New York to Chicago, basing his decision on the local club's refusal to admit him to the grounds.

Chicago Refuses to Play.
McGraw called upon his utility man, Strang, to officiate as umpire. Chance refused to appoint a man from his team to act in conjunction with Strang, saying that the game had been forfeited under the rules.

President Charles Murphy, of the Chicago club, then took a hand in the much mixed proceedings and, after he had spoken a few words to Chance the Chicago players left the grounds.

A few minutes later an announcer made the following statement: "Umpire Johnstone was barred from these grounds today by Police Inspector Sweeney, who feared that the presence of Johnstone after yesterday's insult might incite a riot. Umpire Johnstone has declared the game forfeited by New York to Chicago 9 to 0."

New York Claims Game.
Later on the announcer again addressed the crowd, which by this time was scattered over the diamond and outfield, saying: "I am instructed by Manager McGraw to say that he, having sent Strang out as an umpire and the Chicago team having ignored his calling on them to play ball, the game under the rules is forfeited by Strang to New York 9 to 0 and the New York club will protest the claim of the visiting club."

Rain checks had been issued prior to the game, and the patrons of the club were informed that these checks would be good for any other game on these grounds during the present season.

Police Inspector Sweeney, who seen later on, said that he had not taken the initiative in preventing Umpire Johnstone from entering the grounds, and added that it was at the request of the management of the New York club that he had acted as he did.

Brush Issues Statement.
At the office of the New York club the following statement, signed by John T. Brush, the president, was issued:

"At the conclusion of yesterday's game such disorder followed that a large force of police under the direction of Inspector Sweeney was necessary to protect the umpire, Mr. Johnstone, from the violence of the crowd, who were incensed at his decision."

"After a conference between the club officials and Inspector Sweeney, the inspector deemed it advisable to remove the disturbing cause, and therefore as a measure of precaution he believed that Mr. Johnstone ought not to reappear upon the grounds."

"Mr. Emslie, who also officiated yesterday, was within the grounds at the time and could, and should have, unpled the game, but after holding a conference with Mr. Heydler, the assistant secretary to the president of the National League, he left the Polo grounds with Mr. Johnstone. In the absence of an umpire the New York club selected its representative to act as a player-umpire and took its position on the field ready to play. The Chicago club refused to be guided by the rule and left the field and the umpire selected by the New York club forfeited the game to New York 9 to 0."

Murphy Justifies Chicago.

The statement by President Charles W. Murphy, of the Chicago club, in part, says: "Umpire Johnstone forfeited the game to the Chicago National League club because, the New York club had violated the National League constitution in denying him admittance to the Polo grounds where he had been assigned for duty by Secretary Pulliam. After Umpire Johnstone had forfeited the game to Chicago the Chicago club could not contest for supremacy in a game which had already been awarded to it. The Chicago club could not engage in an exhibition game with the New York club without violating section 44 of the National League constitution."

Pulliam Sustains Umpire.
President Harry C. Pulliam, of the National League of baseball clubs, made the following statement at Saratoga: "The Chicago club rightfully and in strict accordance with the National League constitution declined to play. The game was legally forfeited to the Chicago club and I stand by the action of the umpires to the finish. So long as I am president of the National League, I will sustain every forfeit made when an umpire is refused admittance to any park."

Stockholders of the big American Siskin and Foundry company near Racine, elected the same directors as last year. There was no reorganization of the corporation as was expected. The official duties of Gilbert Prentiss, general manager, who resigned some days ago, are to be divided between other officers. Many improvements are to be made.

RUSSIAN ROW BLOWS OVER

CABINET MEMBER SAYS STORM
HAS ABATED.

Government Will Now Endeavor to Appease Peasants by Inaugurating
Its Own Agrarian Project.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 8.—From a member of the cabinet it is learned the government regards the storm raised by the dissolution of parliament as passed, and that it intends immediately to proceed to carry out the policy of "strong handed reform" to which Premier Stolypin committed himself.

The cardinal plank of the programme is an attempt to appease the discontented peasantry as far as possible. The government agrarian programme, which will not differ greatly from the St. Petersburg project, will not only be promulgated, but probably will be placed in effect as a temporary law, the emperor having the right to issue temporary laws during a recess of parliament.

In other words, it is the intention of the government to attempt to solve its most difficult problem, irrespective of parliament, in the belief that it will meet with enough support to make it impossible for the next parliament to refuse its assent.

Appointments to the three vacancies in the cabinet, agriculture, commerce and the holy synod, probably will be announced soon. M. Samarin, member of the council of the empire, who was offered the last named post, has finally refused it, thus ending the hope of securing the desired cooperation of the lower house and upper house members.

Prince Yasselski, of the famous Russian family, father of the well-known literature of that name, will probably be minister of agriculture. Another member of the family was recently relieved of the command of the guard division in connection with the mutiny of the first battalion of the Preobrazhenski regiment.

CONTEST OVER EVANS' ESTATE

Property Left to Found Museum in Philadelphia Said to Be Unaccounted for by Trustees.

New York, Aug. 8.—Counsel representing the city of Philadelphia, the Thomas W. Evans Museum and Institute, society of that city and the heirs of Dr. Thomas W. Evans Tuesday asked Justice Giegerich for an order permitting them to inspect the books of the executors and trustees of the estate of Dr. Thomas W. Evans.

Mr. Evans died in Paris in 1897 leaving an estate valued at about $5,000,000.

His will provided that after the heirs had received $265,000 the residue of the estate should be used to found a museum for his art treasures and an institute for instruction in industry in Philadelphia.

The heirs claim that after a contest over the probate of the will the executors agreed to allow them $300,000 more than bequeathed in the will. The petitioners now allege that only $100,000 of the additional $300,000 has been distributed and that the city of Philadelphia has received no part of its legacy.

Frederick R. Couderc, who appeared in court for the heirs of Dr. Evans, said that although the executors have received over $4,000,000 in France since 1897, they had not produced a single scrap of paper to show what they had done with it either in France or in the United States.

"I represent," said he, "the only people who have a dollar's worth of legal financial interest in this property and we take the position that the trustees of the estate have had the property for nine years and will not show their books. This is not a question of any legal or technical argument, but as to why they should not account to us for what they have done with our money."

Counsel for some of the executors opposed the granting of the order and declared that the accounts will soon be made public.

Duke in Auto Collision

Brecon, Wales, Aug. 8.—The duke of Connaught and members of his staff, while riding in an automobile from Monmouth to Bhrayden Tuesday had a narrow escape. The car collided with another and they were both wrecked. The occupants had a severe shaking up.

Warships in Need of Repairs

Washington, Aug. 8.—The navy department has been advised that both the Illinois and Alabama, the ships that were recently in collision while in a fog off Breton's Reef, will have to go into a yard for repairs; but it is not expected that they will be prevented from taking part in the maneuvers of the fleet which have been planned for September.

A "Smoking Race"

An ingenious form of "sport" is now in vogue in Germany, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. It is known as a "smoking race" and is said to have grown very popular. Specially constructed pipes, possessing immense bowls are utilized, the size being identical for each competitor and the tobacco is carefully weighed before it is put therein. When the starter gives the word the smokers, seated in a circle, begin operations in the presence of an interested assemblage of spectators and backers. The man who consumes his tobacco the quickest is, of course, declared the winner.

TEXAS DRENCHED BY HEAVY RAINS

TORRENTIAL RAINS DO DAMAGE TO THE CROPS.

FIRST REPORTS UNTRUE

Exaggeration Marks Stories of Loss of Life—Many Washouts Have Occurred and Bridges Have Been Weakened.

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 8.—According to advices received here, west central Texas has been visited by torrential rains, considerable damage done to growing crops and railroad traffic badly crippled. However, no casualties, so far as known, have occurred, and first reports sent out, it is believed, were greatly exaggerated.

Traffic on the Tampas branch of the Santa Fe system is suspended because of washouts. Several bridges were rendered unsafe, but none were actually washed away.

At Brownwood, Pecan bayou, which flows into the Colorado river, rose so rapidly that some of the people living in the lowlands had to flee for safety. There were several narrow escapes, but no casualties. About six miles of the track of the Santa Fe has been washed out.

At Ballinger some damage was done and the Concho river rose to a higher stage than for years.

At Denison, in the extreme northern edge of the central portion of the state, the rains amounted almost to a deluge.

An unprecedented rainfall throughout portions of the Indian Territory in the vicinity of Francis, on the line of the Frisco road, is reported to have occurred, and also along the Canadian river. A more sudden rise of the river has never been known. The approaches to the Frisco railway bridge have been washed away and the main structure, one mile in length, is threatened. The river has overflowed also in some places, and many farms are under water.

At Francis, the river is bank full, and if an overflow should occur the damage to crops will result. The Frisco has hurried workmen to the danger point and passenger trains are sent back from Francis and detoured over the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad. A small washout occurred at Madill on the Frisco. The Missouri, Kansas & Texas is also threatened with serious trouble where the road crosses the Canadian river. Thirty thousand bags filled with sand were sent to this point.

At Tyrone, in the Atoka-Oklahoma City line, almost a mile of track has been washed away. The bridge is threatened, but will probably be saved.

Amarillo, Tex., in the Panhandle, reports a severe electrical storm, and has news that Canon City, a small town, was wiped out by a tornado and that it killed several people. Wires are down in that direction and this report cannot be confirmed.

At Amarillo the family of a farmer named Riggs, residing four miles south of the town, were killed by lightning.

It is impossible to get even an approximate estimate of the crop damage, but it is believed the loss will reach hundreds of thousands of dollars.

D. C. Taylor was struck by lightning at Ardmore, I. T., and badly injured, but will recover.

Young Woman Drowned

Beloit, Wis., Aug. 8.—Miss Ruth MacCumber, of this city, aged 23 years, daughter of C. H. MacCumber, assistant state secretary of the Congregational Home Missionary society, was drowned in Lake Geneva Tuesday while bathing. Henry P. Smith, trying to rescue her, nearly lost his life.

Crocodile Emblem of Luck

An emblem of good luck, a stuffed crocodile, is found in many of the houses and over doors and gateways in Cairo. The idea conveyed by the custom is similar to our own horseshoe.

Invented Moving Pictures

Moving pictures were invented by an English engineer as early as the beginning of the eighteenth century. The arrangement consisted then of thin strips of wood on a canvas background. With the aid of wires they could be made to move quickly so that the effect of action was given.

Tangled

A woman was telling her doctor the other day how she had nearly been prostrated by the heat of "one" of those amateur days we had. "I was frightfully overcome," she said, "and not a thing did I have in the house to revive me but automatic spirits of pneumonia." A winner, that.

A Crown of Gold

"The late Paul Lawrence Dunbar, the negro poet," said an editor, "once addressed a Sunday school in New York. An odd incident happened, though at its end, an incident that Dunbar laughed at as heartily as the rest of us."

"Dunbar, toward the close of his remarks, said:

"And my little friends, if you do all these things some day you will wear a gold crown. Yes, each of you some day will wear a gold crown."

"A little chap in the front row, catching the poet's friendly eye, piped:

"My father wears one now."

"No," said the poet.

"Yes," he does—on his tomb," said the little chap."

ISOLATED BY MUD.

A Journey Over Some Country Roads

In the West. A writer for a paper who recently took a journey by wagon in a western state describes the condition of the roads in a certain county as follows: "Whenever we passed a farmhouse some man would come out to see the time of day. They all had leisure to burn, it seemed, during these gloomy, muddy days. Near a creek where the bottoms were yet flooded a farmer said ours was the first wheeled craft that had been along that road in some time. He said he had lived in those parts thirty-one years and this was the first season he had ever been completely marooned. But for the loyal mail carrier the world would have been nearly thirty days ahead of him. "The mud-coiled up stubbornly on the wheels, ever increasing like a rolling snowball. Time and again the driver and his passenger had to get down in the mud and with fence rails

MAIL CARRIER'S DESOLATE JOURNEY. and boards pry the sticky stuff off by main strength. In some places the pulling was so difficult the horses would have to stop and rest every twenty-five feet. The axle was often dragging mud, than above it. When they struck the yellow clay the horses' boots would come out with a noise like the crack of a pistol.

"Good roads" was the prayer of every farmer along the murky journey. They feel, deeply, certain that something ought to be done, but are helpless in devising a remedy. Of course every man has an idea, some of apparent practicability.

"You fellows over in town growl because it hurts your trade," remarked an intelligent looking man at the gate of a neat cottage home, "but what do you think it means to us? We're shut up here like castaways on a desert island week after week and can't even think of getting to church, let alone with going to town with stuff to sell. It seems to me that if you people wanted to do business with us you'd lend a hand to help us to get to you."

A MISSOURI COUNTY IDEA.

Novel Method of Encouraging Road Improvement.

Among the unique methods of promoting interest in good roads is that adopted by citizens of Saline county, in Missouri, says Walter Williams, in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. From Marshall, the county seat, has been mailed to the farmers of Saline county a circular letter setting forth the plan. The plan proposes to assemble at Marshall on a certain day all the farmers who get their mail at that town. They are asked to bring with them each a drag and team of horses. The farmers thus assembled are to be divided into groups, and each group is to drag and otherwise improve that day from three to five miles of a county road leading into the town of Marshall. The citizens of Marshall are to supply assistance in money, teams and otherwise. It is expected that much road improvement will be accomplished by this one day's united work.

As an added inducement, a photograph is to be taken of the thousand farmers and their teams who are looked for in Marshall on that day. This will be taken in sections four feet by eleven inches in size, and a copy of the photograph will be furnished free to every participant in the road dragging. It will be called, "The Good Roads Legion of Honor," and the promoters of the plan say it will be the most wonderful photograph ever taken in the state of Missouri.

Use of Steam Road Rollers

In reply to an inquiry by W. Pierrepont White, county superintendent of Utah, N. Y., as to the practical value of using on hilly roads, and operating the steam roller and road scraper together, County Superintendent F. G. Douglass of Canadaigua has given the result of his experience in the following letter, says the Good Roads Magazine:

William Pierrepont White, Esq., Utica: Dear Sir—Your letter of yesterday received and read and we have never had any trouble working the Buffalo roller on any hills that we have in this town.

In regard to hauling road scraper with steam roller I would say that we always use the steam roller as far as possible to both scrape and compact our roads for the reason that the work performed with the steam roller is vastly better and very much cheaper. As to the comparative cost of doing such work with teams or steam roller, I will submit the following:

Engineer, one day	$2.00
Two laborers, one day	$1.50
Coal and oil, one day	1.50
Total	$5.00

Three teams and driver, one day	$12.00
One laborer, one day	1.75
Total	$13.75

Comparing the above figures shows a saving in favor of the work done with steam roller of $8.25 per day, which can be applied to cost of roller, besides having the work done in better shape than can possibly be done in any other way. Very truly yours, F. G. DOUGLASS.

Margaret Hoppe, a 2-year-old girl of Kenosha, while playing about her home, found a two-ounce bottle of chloral and drank more than half of the contents. She was unconscious for more than four hours, but it is thought that she will survive.

PORTER WILL LEAD IOWA DEMOCRATS

NAMED FOR GOVERNOR ON THE FOURTH BALLOT.

SYMPATHY WITH UNIONS

Members of Labor Organizations Are Called Upon to Follow Advice of Leaders and Assert Political Rights at Ballot Box.

Waterloo, Ia., Aug. 8.—The Democratic state convention Tuesday nominated a full state ticket, headed by Claude R. Porter, of Appanoose county, for governor, adopted a platform and adjourned sine die.

The platform favors a tariff for revenue only, the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people and demands the enactment of such legislation as will effectually destroy all trusts.

The platform expresses sympathy with the purposes of national labor organizations as set forth in recent addresses by Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and others calling on labor to assert its political rights at the ballot box.

A resolution was adopted pledging to William Jennings Bryan the support of Iowa Democrats for the presidency of 1908.

Personnel of the Ticket

The ticket nominated follows:
Governor—Claude R. Porter, Appanoose county.

Lieutenant Governor—John D. Denison, Jr., Dubuque county.

Secretary of State—J. S. McLuen, Guthrie county.

Auditor—C. E. Monroe, Mahaska county.

Treasurer—L. F. Danforth, Calhoun county.

Attorney General—Fred A. Townsend, Monroe county.

Superintendent of Public Instruction—W. S. Wilson, Lyon county.

Judges Supreme Court—L. M. Fisher, of Scott, and E. M. Carr, of Delaware county.

Clerk Supreme Court—T. W. Keenan, Page county.

Reporter Supreme Court—H. M. Parker, Muscatine county.

Railroad Commissioners—W. L. Carpenter, Polk county, and E. K. Stoll, Henry county.

Four Ballots for Governor.

The first ballot on governor resulted:

Claude R. Porter, 262; John D. Denison, 245½; George W. Ball, 231½; H. B. Boles, 130; Donald Mac Rae, 59.

The second ballot showed a slight gain for Porter. The name of Mac Rae, of Council Bluffs, was withdrawn after the second ballot.

The third ballot gave Porter 338; Denison, 248; Ball, 179; Boles, 163.

The fourth ballot was started when Ball withdrew. Porter was then nominated, receiving 507 votes; Boles, 292; and Denison 132.

John D. Denison was nominated for lieutenant governor by acclamation. Both Porter and Denison were called before the convention and spoke briefly. Other nominations were made by acclamation until judges of the supreme court were reached. Four names were presented and on roll call: L. M. Fisher, of Scott, and E. M. Carr, of Delaware, were nominated over E. A. Sager, of Bremer, and E. C. Herrick, of Cherokee.

One ballot was taken on railroad commissioners.

Platform in Outline

The platform unanimously adopted demands legislation to destroy trusts, favors rate regulation in Iowa to give rates as low as interstate rates, favors two-cent passenger fare, a state primary law that will protect all parties, election of United States senators by a unit vote of the people, favors laws to punish corporations for contributing to political funds, expresses sympathy with the political programme of national labor leaders, and demands assessment of railroads in Iowa by a nonpartisan commission.

PLAN TO HELP WRECK VICTIMS

Spanish Cabinet to Vote Credits for Relief of Survivors.

Cartagena, Aug. 8.—The Spanish government is organizing a committee to relieve the extremity of the Sicilian survivors. A cabinet meeting will be held at Madrid to vote urgent credits. A wealthy merchant, who abandoned a number of valuable jewels on board the Sivio, has donated them, when recovered, to the relief fund.

The capitalists of the fishing trawlers Joven Miguel and Vicenta, Lelcano, who rendered such noteworthy service at the time of the disaster, have been decorated with the naval order of Merit.

New Alloy

According to the Iron Age an alloy consisting of two parts of aluminum and one of zinc is equal in strength to good cast iron, does not oxidize or rust readily, and is of an even white color. It melts at a low red heat, but it is rather brittle, and hence is not suitable for use where toughness, like that of brass, is required. The alloy is called "alzene."

It melts at a low red heat, but it is rather brittle, and hence is not suitable for use where toughness, like that of brass, is required. The alloy is called "alzene."

Japan's Original Idea

A young Japanese, who, recently committed suicide by leaping into the crater of the volcano at Asama, left behind him a note, in which he said: "Suffering a feeling of despair impels me to throw myself into the crater of vehement Asama, thus winning a splendid death, and ascending the mountain's smoke to a lofty life above the sky."

OFFICIAL NOTICE.

Notice to Lay Lateral Sewers, Water and Gas Service Pipes on Washington Street.

Published by authority of the common council of the city of Janesville. Office of the City Clerk.

Janesville, Wis., August 7, 1906.

To whom it may concern:

The common council of the city of Janesville, having on the 6th day of August, 1906, adopted a resolution requiring the laying of lateral sewers or drains and water and gas service pipes from the main sewers, water and gas mains to the curb line on each side of that portion of Washington street from the north side of West Bluff street to the south side of Ravine street, at the cost of the property fronting thereon and in accordance with the plans and specifications adopted therefor.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that said plans and specifications are on file in my office, showing the location and size and the kind and quality of material required for the construction of such lateral sewers or drains and water and gas service pipes, and that the owners or occupants of the lots, parts of lots and parcels of land fronting or abutting upon the portion of said street ordered paved are required to do such work opposite their respective lots, parts of lots and parcels of land according to said plans and specifications, and if such owners or occupants shall refuse or neglect to do the same before the paving of such street, in front of said property and within ten days after the publication of this notice, the street assessment committee, discharging the duties of a board of public works, will procure the same to be done and charge and assess the expense thereof to the lots, parts of lots or parcels of land fronting upon such work in the manner provided in and by section 925-223 of the Wisconsin Statutes of 1898.

A. E. BADGER,
City Clerk.

Same Old Story.

Congratulate me, old man, I'm engaged. I'm just going out to pawn my watch and chain.

The Charge.

Titewodd—I thought you said you wouldn't charge me anything for the little legal question I asked you? Lawyer—I didn't. I charged you with the answer—Cleveland Leader.

"A Soft Answer"

Housewife—Now what do you want?

Peddler—I have here a soap for removing stains from paint, carpets, furniture and—but really, I don't think you need it, for there isn't a stain on your paint or hall carpet, and if your furniture within is as spick and span—which no doubt it is—everything appears here, I have come to the wrong house. Good-morn!

Housewife (pleasantly)—Never mind. You may let me have half-a-dozen cakes. I dare say they will come in handy some day.—Tit-Bits.

A party of visitors to Washington was taken to the supreme court and gazed with awe on that distinguished body. "What do you think of them, Johnny?" asked the fond papa in the party to his son. "Why, Johnny replied, "I think they look like a tree full of owls."

CHAPTER XXIII

WHEN Roger Oakley appeared on the platform at Buckhorn Junction, Durks started violently. While Dan took a quick step forward and placed a warning hand on the old convict's arm. He feared what he might say. Then he said to the operator: "He'll do. Go see if you can get Antioch. Try just once more. If you succeed take them engines and hose will be there within an hour or they need not look for them. Do you understand?"

"All right, Mr. Oakley," And Durks moved up the platform with alacrity. He was relieved of one irksome responsibility. He had his own theories as to who the stranger was, but he told himself it was none of his business.

As soon as he was out of hearing Dan turned to his father and said earnestly: "Look here, daddy, I can't allow you to do it. We are neither of us popular. It's bad enough for me to have to go."

"Why can't you allow it, Dan?" And his son recognized the same cheerfulness with which he had always met and overruled his objections.

"It will end in your arrest, and we don't want that."

"It's more than likely I'll be arrested sooner or later anyhow," he said, with a suggestion of weariness, as if this were a matter it was a waste of time to consider. "The Lord has set his face against me. It's his wish I should return. Two heads are better than one, and wouldn't see it, but look there." And he nodded toward the red western sky. "It's a summons. I got to obey whether I want to or not."

"It won't be safe. No telling what they will do with you."

"That ain't the question, Dannie. That ain't at all the question. It's not what they'll do to me. And he softly patted the hand that rested on his arm.

Dan saw that his clothes hung loosely to his mighty frame. They were torn and stained. He had the appearance of a man who had endured hardship, privation and toil. His glance was furtive and anxious. "Where have you been all this while?" he asked. "Not here?"

"No, I have been living in the woods, trying to escape from the country, and the fires wouldn't let me. Wherever I went they were there ahead of me, driving me back."

"Why did you kill him? How did it happen?" Dan asked. "Or is it all a mistake? Did you do it?"

The smile faded from the old convict's lips. "It was a sort of accident, and it was sort of carelessness, Dannie," he explained, with a touch of sullenness. "Hit him—not hard, mind you. I know I shouldn't have done it, but he was in the wrong, and he wouldn't listen to reason. I don't know when I ever seen a man so set in his wickedness."

"And now you want to go back. Do you know what it means if you are arrested? Have you thought of that?"

Roger Oakley waved the query aside as though it concerned him not at all. "I want to be with you," he said wistfully. "You may not get through alive, and I want to be with you. You'll need me. There's no one you can trust as you can me. For I won't fail you no matter what the danger is. And there's the girl, Dannie. Have you thought of her?"

Dan set his lips. "My God, I can't think of anything else."

There was a moment's silence. "Here," said Dan, thrusting his hands into his pockets. "I am going to give you what money I have. It isn't much."

"What for, Dannie?"

"You are sure to be seen and recognized if you stay about here. Your description has been telegraphed all over the state. For that reason I'll take you with me part way. Then I'll slow up, and you can hide again. It's your only chance. I am sure I can't do more for you. I wish I could. But perhaps we can arrange to meet afterward."

His father smiled with the unconscious superiority of the man who firmly believes he is controlled by an intelligence infinitely wise and beyond all human conception. No amount of argument could have convinced him that Providence was not burning millions of feet of standing timber and an occasional town solely for his guidance. In his simple prepossession he saw nothing absurd or preposterous in the idea. He said:

"I've wanted to escape, Dannie, for your sake, not for mine. But when I seen you tonight I knew the Lord intended we should keep together. He didn't bring us here for nothing. That hurt his way. There's no one to go with you but me, and you can't go alone."

"I can't will!" And Dan swore under his breath. He realized that no word of his could move his father. He would carry his point, just as he always had.

Durks came running along the platform from the depot.

"It's no use," he shouted. "The wife's down. Say, you want to keep your eyes open for the freight. It may be on the siding at Parker's Run, and it may be on the main track."

Dan didn't just appeal to his father. "Don't you listen to what I say?"

slinking his voice to a hoarse whisper. "They'll hang you—do you hear? It ever they hang you, they will show no mercy." It did not occur to him that his father would be returning under circumstances so exceptional that public sentiment might well undergo a radical change in his favor.

Roger Oakley merely smiled as he answered, with gentle composure: "I don't think we need to worry about that. We care for his bonds, Dannie. And he raised his face to the heavens. Dan groaned.

"Come, then," he said aloud. "I'll throw the switch for you." And the operator ran down the track. He was quite positive he should never see Oakley again, and he felt something akin to enthusiasm at the willing sacrifice of his life which he conceived him to be making.

Father and son stepped to the engine. The old convict mounted heavily to his post, and Dan sprang after him, his hand groping for the throttle lever. There was the hiss of steam, and Joe cried from the darkness:

"All right, come ahead!" And the engine, with its tender and two cars, began its hazardous journey.

As they slipped past him the operator yelled his goodby and Dan pushed open the cab window and waved his hand.

"It will end in your arrest, and we don't want that."

"It's more than likely I'll be arrested sooner or later anyhow," he said, with a suggestion of weariness, as if this were a matter it was a waste of time to consider. "The Lord has set his face against me. It's his wish I should return. Two heads are better than one, and wouldn't see it, but look there." And he nodded toward the red western sky. "It's a summons. Father and son stepped to the engine. The old convict mounted heavily to his post, and Dan sprang after him, his hand groping for the throttle lever. There was the hiss of steam, and Joe cried from the darkness:

"All right, come ahead!" And the engine, with its tender and two cars, began its hazardous journey.

They were still in the burned district, where a change in the wind that afternoon had driven the fire back on itself. It had made a clean sweep of everything inflammable. Luckily the road had been freshly ballasted, and the track was in fair condition to resist the flames. But an occasional tie smoldered, and from these the rushing train thrashed showers of sparks.

"Dan kept his eyes fastened on the rails, which showed plainly in the jerky glare of the headlights. It was well to be careful while care was possible. By and by he would have to throw aside all caution and trust to chance. Now he increased his speed, and the insistent thud of the wheels drowned every other sound, even the far-off roar of the flames. At his back at intervals a ruddy glow shot upward into the night when Roger Oakley threw open the furnace door to pass in coal. Saved for this it was still quite dark in the cab, where Dan sat with his hand on the throttle lever and watched the yellow streak that ran along the rails in advance of the engine. Suddenly the wall of light ahead brightened visibly, and its glare filled the cab. They were nearing the fire.

Dan jammed the little window at his elbow open and put out his head. A hot blast roared past him, and the heat of the fire was in his face. He drew the window shut. It was light as day in the cab now.

He leaned across the boiler's end and, with a hand to his lips, called to his father, "Are you all right?"

The old man drew himself erect and crept nearer.

"What's that you say, Dannie?" he asked. His face was black with coal dust and grime.

"Are you all right? Can you bear the heat?"

"I am doing very nicely, but this ain't a patch on what it's going to be."

"Yes, it will be much worse, though this is bad enough."

"But we can stand it. We must think of those poor people at Antioch."

"We'll stick to the engine as long as the engine sticks to the rails," said Dan grimly. "Hain't you better come into the cab with me? You'll be frightened if you see what we get into the thick of it."

"Not yet, Dannie. I'll give you steam, and you drive her as hard as you can."

He turned away, shovel in hand. Then, all in a second, and they were in the burning woods, rushing beneath trees that were blazing to their very summits. The track seemed to shake and tremble in the fierce light and deafening heat. Running leaves and branches were caught up to be whirled in fiery eddies back down the rails as the train tore along. For Dan was hitting head-on!

Tongues of fire struck across at the two men. Smoke and dust white-ashed, filled their mouths and nostrils. Their bodies seemed to bake. They had been streaming wet with perspiration a moment before.

"Out of the forest it was possible to see for miles. Every tree and bush stood forth distinct and separate."

Roger Oakley put down his shovel for an instant to fill a bucket with water from the tank on the tender. He plunged his head and arms in it and splashed the rest over his clothes. Dan turned to him for the last time.

"It isn't far now," he panted. "Just around the next curve and we'll see the town! It's still there off in the valley."

The old convict did not catch more than the half of what he said, but he smiled and nodded his head.

As they swung around the curve a dead sycamore which the fire had gnawed at the base crashed across the track. The engine plunged into its top, rolled it over once and tossed it aside. There was the smashing of glass and the ripping of leather as the sycamore's limbs raked the cab, and Roger Oakley uttered a hoarse cry—a cry Dan did not hear, but he turned, spluttering dust and cinders from his lips, and saw the old convict still standing, shovel in hand, in the narrow gangway that separated the engine and tender.

He had set the whistle shrieking, and cut off high above the roar of the flames, far off in the distance under a canopy of smoke he saw the lights of Antioch shining among the trees.

Two minutes later and they were running smoothly through the yards, with the brakes on and the hiss of escaping steam. As they slowed up beside the depot Dan sank down on the seat in the cab limp and exhausted. He was vaguely conscious that the platform was crowded with people and that they were yelling at him excitedly and waving their hats, but he heard their cries only indifferently well. His ears were dead to everything except the noise of his engine, which still echoed in his tired brain. He staggered to his feet and was about to descend from the cab when he saw that his father was lying face down on the iron shelf between the engine and tender. He stooped and raised him gently in his arms.

The old convict opened his eyes and looked up into his face, his lips parted as if he were about to speak, but no sound came from them.

Regimental Reunions and Forty-third Anniversary Battle Chickamauga, Chattanooga, September 18-20, 1906.

On September 18, 1906, will occur the forty-third anniversary of the Battle of Chickamauga. It is proposed to celebrate this memorable event with a reunion of the various regiments that participated in this memorable battle and the various battles fought around Chattanooga. This reunion will be held at Chickamauga National Park, September 18, 19 and 20, and the present indications are that it will be the largest and most notable gathering ever held in the South.

On the above dates, the remnants from the armies of twelve states, comprising the following: Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas and Kentucky, will assemble, many of the first and last time, since they marched from their blood-stained fields, forty-three years ago.

Here is one of the greatest opportunities for the education of the youth. Don't fail to take your children and show them historic Chattanooga, with all its historical connections. It is the opportunity of a lifetime. Go and see the old war generals and other officers point out the places of interest on the battlefield; let them show you and explain, in person, the markers erected on the battlefield showing the positions of the opposing armies at the time of battle. It will not be long until none will be left to do this noble work.

It will be many years, if ever again, that such an opportunity will present itself. See that your tickets read via the Louisville & Nashville R. R., the Battledore Route. Call on your nearest railroad agent for rates and advertising matter pertaining to the reunion, or write nearest representative of the Louisville & Nashville R. R.

S.S.S. RIDES THE SYSTEM OF MALARIA

The healthy color of the skin is given to it by the millions of little red corpuscles in the blood. These are the carriers of nourishment, health and strength to all parts of the body—in other words the very life of the blood. When the germs of Malaria get into this vital fluid they destroy these corpuscles and rob the blood of its rich, life-sustaining qualities, rendering it thin, weak and watery and unable to supply the system with the needed strength to resist disease. Then the symptoms of Malaria such as pale, sallow complexion, weak vitality, poor appetite, deranged digestion, a general "let down" condition of the system, and perhaps chills and slight fever, show that this insidious disease is gradually affecting the entire health, and medicine to accomplish this is S.S.S. It not only cleanses the blood of all impure, unhealthy matter, but rides the system of Malaria, and restores the blood to a strong, healthy condition. S.S.S., besides removing the germs of Malaria, builds up and gives tone and vigor to the entire system by its fine tonic effects. Malaria is a blood disease, and S.S.S. cures it because it is a perfect blood purifier. Book on the blood and any medical advice without charge.

PERSISTING IN CURE.

It is often found important as our readers know, to urge general ideas concerning curing diseased conditions, illustrating these by special cases of illness that have been relieved. This is what is desired at present. The first things for consideration are those to be regarded not as desirable persistence, following these by some things which are. Well, then, suppose you have a case in a large joint, such as the knee. You have to think there is something like inflammatory action in this knee joint, or at least, in the fleshy parts that surround it.

You put on a cold, wet cloth, and press it gently around the limb. This is very comforting, and somewhat eases the pain or restlessness that has been experienced. Up to a certain point this cooling process is felt to be right and pleasant, but beyond that it begins to lose its pleasant character, and to persist beyond this point is not desirable. It is evident that from that time you have a call for something else than cooling. That has been good up to this period, but it is not so beyond it; therefore you stop the cooling process for a time. And it will now be well to adopt just the opposite. You accordingly get a tub or bath with hot water, and pour this upon the knees, or if this cannot be done, you soak a large flannel in hot water, and wrap that around the knee, packing all up in a dry sheet to keep the heat in as well as possible. This is felt to be agreeable and comforting, but if you continue this beyond a certain point it ceases to be so alleviating. Further persistence in this treatment, therefore, is not desirable.

Nothing can be clearer than such a truth as comes to us here, but the same truth appears in a great many cases, and in a great many ways. With this knee, you have two opposite modes of dealing, and both will fail at a certain stage; therefore, to persist with either beyond that stage will do harm rather than good.

But you are not to conclude that you must give up both as hopeless merely because both fail at a certain point. You cease cooling when it is indicated you shall do so; you cease fomenting with hot applications when it is indicated you shall discontinue that. But you return to the cooling when the heat fails and you find this has become delightful now. You go on with it until it ceases to be so; then change to the hot fomentations thus alternating as the conditions indicate.

But it is not desirable persistence to keep going on beyond a certain time with either the hot or the cold treatment and that time is shown by both ceasing to give comfort. Then entire rest is indicated, but abandonment of the poor knee is not rest. Rest will be relieving to a certain point; beyond which it produces uneasiness, and it, therefore, undesirable after that point is reached.

The cooling, probably, will be the right thing now, and so, if you are to succeed in affecting a complete cure, change treatments as above advised.

But now for real and desirable persistence. You have a case of severe neuralgic pain, and you apply cold to the root of the nerve or nerves affected. The feeling is one of slight relief, but it is so little it seemed to do no good. Still it is rather comfortable than otherwise.

To follow this slender thread is desirable persistence. It may be that the pain not only returns as soon as you stop cooling the roots of the nerves, but that it comes back worse. Yet if this cooling does the slightest good at its application, it is desirable to persist.

Severe neuralgic attacks have been known which yielded to such treatment only for a moment, and then returned worse than ever, but when it was fought steadily for a time, it disappeared altogether, and that just after a terrible twinge.

The idea underlying all this is, when you feel the slightest relief from a certain treatment, you have to continue that mode of treatment to secure the cure desired. It may take long persistence, but it will be rewarded if the nurse or attendant perseveres long enough.

It is wished to illustrate here the principle in nature which is revealed in cooling and heating, the one after the other. It may be seen in day and night, and the influence of these changes on vegetable life, especially. It is the same in summer and winter. You see the plant that would die if unceasing day shine upon it, but it thrives under so much of day and so much of night. So a northern tree will bear the night and day of the summer and winter. But it would not bear with any one of these only.

A great deal may be gathered in matters of health to man and beast from a careful study of this most manifest principle in nature.

You see what persistence means; i.e., not to persist in one thing only, but in the best possible change of things. You will find this to apply to food, and to such remedies as may be found in food, and even in clothing. Persistence is not found in keeping always to just one thing, but often in keeping to a good course of changes, and these are indicated by feelings of relief, or the opposite. For instance, in severe toothache, or bad nerve pain in the head, good rubbing all over the head for a considerable time will often cure. But, after a certain amount of rubbing, the good effect is counteracted by the heat that is produced, hence, you must wrap the head in a cold cloth, so as to remove the heat. When you have done this, you rub again. Then you have to cool again. Persisting, so as to really cure, is persisting, not in one of the applications, but in both, as properly working into each other. Then you have a cure that will last for years, if you have persisted sufficiently.

There are cases in which agonizing pain was thus removed years ago, which has never returned. Rubbing in a gentle, soothing way, was first applied over the whole head. At a certain point, that began to lose its influence. The cold towel was then wrapped round the head, and gently pressed. As soon as it warmed, it was changed. This was done for perhaps three or four minutes, and the rubbing then repeated. The alternation was continued for about an hour. All pain and uneasiness were gone and there was no return of either. This will show what is meant by persistence in cure.

CLUB NOTES.

Mississippi.—Dr. David H. Reeder, La Porte, Ind.—Dear Doctor: I have been reading some of the Home Health Club Notes and I notice where you recommend the following prescription for constipation: Prepare one pound of figs and cook in pure olive oil in a double boiler. When done add honey and lemon-essence to suit the taste.

Do you mean dried figs and is this mixture to be strained and kept for any length of time? Is there danger of fermentation? How much is a dose for adult? I will be so much obliged for this information. Will this remedy do for children; also the gentian syrup? Respectfully, Mrs. M. B.

The common dried ripe figs are the kind to be used, the small-sized ones are the best. The mixture is not to be strained, the figs themselves are to be eaten. It ought to keep indefinitely, but it would be best to keep them in a sealed fruit jar. From one to two figs may be eaten by an adult and one by a child. They should be used according to the effects which they have upon the user. This simple home-treatment cannot do harm under any ordinary circumstances.

Wisconsin.—Dr. David H. Reeder, La Porte, Ind.—Dear Sir: We are readers of this paper and I would be pleased to have you prescribe something which would rid me of the blues below the eyes. The skin is somewhat glossy and at times I am almost ashamed of the appearance. It has been more noticeable below my right eye for about six months. My eyes are all right and the tear ducts carry away the moisture of the eyes all right. I have tried witch-hazel and also a few patent medicine preparations externally.

I am 20 years old and attending school, and am bothered slightly with kidney trouble. I might also mention that I am bothered with blackheads and at times small red spots, which bring out matter from deeper tissues. Thanking you in advance for any advice, I am, respectfully, B. A.

From the description which you have given I am inclined to suspect that the difficulty in your kidneys is more pronounced than you anticipate, and I think it would be wise for you to have a thorough and careful analysis made of the urine in the near future and ascertain the true conditions. You should then send me the report of the analysis. The home treatment for the cure of pimples, blackheads, etc., has been frequently given in these columns.

All readers of this publication are at liberty to inquire for any information pertaining to the subject of health. All communications should be addressed to the Home Health Club, or Dr. David H. Reeder, and should contain name and address in full, and at least four cents in postage.

PARASOLS FOR THE DOLLS.

Tiny Sunshades Are Made in Great Variety and Are Very Pretty.

Very pretty and very dainty are the dolls' parasols offered nowadays, and they can be had in various sizes and in a very great variety of styles and ranging in price from 25 cents to $3.50 each, states a New York exchange.

There are simple little parasols in solid colors, and there are others of striped silks. And then there are very handsome and ornamental little parasols made of light colored brocaded silks, and they may be trimmed with lace and still others of white silk or of silk in various light and pretty colors, which may likewise be trimmed with lace or with ruffles.

These pretty little parasols are mounted with handles of great variety, both in their designs and in the materials used. There are, in various styles, handles of wood, of bone, of horn, or of ivory and of Dresden china.

While the doll is now so well and handsomely provided for in the way of parasols, it is at the same time by no means neglected in the matter of umbrellas, for there are dolls' umbrellas, too—the trimmest little umbrellas that ever were made—perfect little umbrellas in every way made of black silk and in various sizes and ranging in price up to $1 each.

THE ART OF LOAFING

As It Is Viewed by General Jake Smith.

CONSISTS IN ACTION, NOT IDLENESS

Veteran Fighter's Idea of a Life of Leisure—Is to Broaden All That Is Most Refined in a Man's Tastes. Will Automobile in France and Wants Chiefly to Study Art in Famous Galleries Abroad.

General Jacob Hurd Smith, U. S. A. (retired), who won fame as a great fighter in the rebellion in Cuba and in the Philippines, recently sailed for Europe with the express purpose and deliberate intention of loafing, says the New York World. "Loafing," according to General Smith, is a science, even a fine art, and he goes to Europe to loaf because he can find no one in America who will loaf with him in the way he wants. People here are too busy, or think they are, which is just as bad, to spend time in enjoying themselves, and he is a sociable, genial soul who feels that by a life of fighting he has earned the right to enjoy himself, but he does not like to loaf alone.

"What is loafing for me," he said, "may not be loafing for others. Some retired army officers have ideas of relaxation that do not appeal to me. I visited one man recently and said to him, 'General, now that you are out of the army, what are you going to do with yourself?' And he answered gravely, 'I am studying turtles.' Another good friend of mine I found in his garden, devoting his life to raising roses. I told those fellows they were burying themselves, they were too narrow in their ideas, but they seemed happy and satisfied."

"My idea of spending a life of leisure is to broaden as much as possible all that is most refined in man's tastes. There you have, in a few words, what I call loafing and what most men in this country think they are too busy to do. Since I was retired from active service three years ago, at the age of sixty-two, I have spent a large part of my time in Europe, studying the methods of European armies and enjoying myself in my own way. Now I am going back there for the winter."

General Smith is a short, slender man, who looks very like Field Marshal Lord Roberts of the British army. His shoulders are square, his chest deep, and he carries himself like a true soldier. His face is seamed and crisscrossed with the wrinkles that years of hardship and peril have stamped; his nose is of the aquiline type that Napoleon required in his generals; his eyes are a pale greenish blue and look at you with penetrating fearlessness, amounting even to fierceness when intensity of thought or expression deepens the two lines that rise from his nose and bisect his forehead, but that melt into tenderness when he speaks of his wife or the boys who fought under him and were killed. He is bald, with a fringe of iron gray hair and a thick but closely cropped iron gray mustache. He dresses with the same quiet refinement.

A picturesque forbiddance characterizes his speech; the force that is exemplified in his famous dispatch to General Orléans from Annames when besieged in that Luzon village by a force of natives far larger than the handful of men he had under him. "I will hold this place till hell freezes over and then fight on the ice!"

"Mrs. Smith and I sail on Saturday direct for London. We shall be entertained by some friends at Hampstead for about ten days, and then we go to Paris, where I have many friends. From there we go down the Loire to Tours and making that city our headquarters, spend a few weeks automobiling about among the chateaux. I have a friend who has a fine fast motor car, and I shall act as chauffeur. Oh, yes, I understand the car. I spent several weeks last spring in the factory of the makers studying its mechanism, and I can take it all to pieces and put it together again without trouble. From Tours we shall go into central France, through the Puy de Dome region, down to the Riviera and so on to Italy, reaching Rome about Christmas."

"I want to spend Christmas day in Rome. After a few weeks there we shall sail from Naples for Palermo and will spend the early spring in Sicily, then back to the continent, to Balneario in time for the Wagner festival, then to Munich for the musical season there and so back home about the 1st of June. I have laid out no definite itinerary, but this is an outline of my general plan, which I shall vary as the spirit moves me."

"It may seem a strange thing for an old soldier to be fond of, but art is what I want most to study. I want to be able when I look at a picture to recognize the painter by the style, to know the school and the history of the artist, and further still, to know precisely why I admire the picture, what are the qualities in it which appeal to my sense of beauty. I like to roam about in the famous galleries of Europe; I like to meet and to know the men who can give me new and intelligent views of things which are worth knowing; I like to talk with men who have time to devote to the finer things of life. I do not want my horizon to be bounded by turtles or by roses, charming in their own narrow way, as these things may be. I have not much more than twenty years to live, perhaps not that. My life has been busy and active, but I have always found time to prepare myself for the days of retirement that were to follow. I have studied French for many years and can talk it well enough to get along in France, though it may not be the purest of Parisian."

BET SUGAR IN ENGLAND.

Experiments in Essex Last Year Showed That Beets of Best Quality Could Be Grown.

In nearly every county in England, Wales and southern Ireland it has been demonstrated that beets of high sugar content can be grown. It has, however, yet to be satisfactorily shown that sugar can be commercially and profitably manufactured from these beets. The failure of an attempt at sugar production in England some 20 years ago would seem to answer this in the negative. But it appears that beets used at that failure contained only ten per cent. of sugar, and that farmers found it more profitable to feed them to their stock than to sell at the price the factory could afford to pay. In the present Essex experiments, however, the average percentage of sugar in the beets is placed at 16 1/2, and even this has been exceeded in several recorded cases in other counties. This striking improvement in quality has been produced by careful selection and by close attention to other details of culture.

The experiments in Essex last year showed that beets could be grown equal to and in some cases better in quality than those raised in sugar producing countries. While this is the first thing to be investigated, the committee says "it does not follow that even when this is established beyond any possibility of doubt the undertaking is one that would necessarily be a commercial success. The business side of the question—the cost of production, the cost of working a factory and a host of similar points—needs careful and experienced consideration."

Figures are given showing that the cost per acre in these experiments was about 16 per cent. more than in similar experiments in the United States.
